CERL - Heritage of the Printed Book Database

The HPB Database (previously called the Hand Press Book Database) is a steadily growing collection of files of catalogue records from major European and North American research libraries covering items of European printing of the hand-press period (c.1455-c.1830) integrated into one file. This makes it possible for information to be retrieved in one single search across all files. As the digitisation of collections in contributing libraries progresses, more and more catalogue records point to digital presentations of the early printed books.

The HPB Database is of interest to librarians and any one else with academic pursuits across many fields of study that use printed books as source material. It is especially valuable for research in intellectual history, social history, and transmission of thought as well as in the history of printing and the history of the book. It may be accessed for information retrieval and downloading by CERL member institutions, their staff and users.

- Dove sono gli altri volumi che formavano una biblioteca OGGI?
- Come possono le biblioteche di oggi ricostruire il proprio passato?
- Come possono gli storici studiare la ricezione dei testi attraverso i secoli, in aree geografiche differenti?
- Come possiamo noi valutare l'impatto dei libri sullo sviluppo sociale ed intellettuale?

- Concentrarsi sull' USO che biblioteche e studiosi possono fare dei dati di provenienza:
- Necessità di INTEGRARE i dati di provenienza per permettere una ricerca sistematica attraverso barriere istituzionali e nazionali

About this Database

MEI is a database specifically designed to record and search the material evidence (or copy specific, post-production evidence and provenance information) of 15th-century printed books: ownership, decoration, binding, manuscript annotations, stamps, prices, etc. MEI is linked to the Incunabula Short Title Catalogue \(ISTC\), provided by the British Library, from which it derives the bibliographical records; and it allows the user at last to combine searches of bibliographical records (extracted from ISTC) with copyspecific records.

Uniquely, every element recorded (a certain style of decoration or binding, a manuscript note, etc.) is treated as a valuable clue for provenance, therefore it can be geographically located and chronologically dated. Explicit ownership notes are further categorised as private or institutional, religious or lay, female or male, and by profession. This enables tracking of the movement of books across Europe and through the centuries.

Manuscript notes, equally valuable for understanding the readership of the early editions, are classified according to their frequency and their type: corrections, completions, supplements, extraction of key words, collation, translation, structuring the text, comments, censorship, reading marks (underlining and pointing hands). These data allow for sophisticated social studies on the use of books, readership and reading.

Prices and currencies, fundamentally important to the economic study of the book-trade, are also individually recorded. This will allow a critical mass of evidence to be submitted to the analysis of economic historians.

Personal and institutional names of ownership are linked to the CERL Thesaurus, where further bio-bibliographical information can be found. This provides links to other editions identified with the specified name, clarifying whether the owner was also an author, thus merging ownership and authorship information. Provenance locations are also linked to the CERL Thesaurus, which offers geocoordinates and map locations. MEI is being developed to provide a physical representation of the circulation of books throughout the centuries, from place of production, to their present locations.

Search Advice

Your search can be performed on local MEI database and the Incunabula Short Title Catalogue (ISTC). To include records from the ISTC, check the checkbox below the search line.

Please note that diacritics in ISTC are expressed in plain characters (i.e. instead of "Böhmen" type "Bohmen".)

By clicking more search options... you may search for characteristics of certain copies and their provenances. This search options apply to the local database only. Please switch off the ISTC search when using them.

About this Database

For several decades there have been efforts throughout Europe to investigate the national histories of books, their printing and the book trades.

The history of the book in Britain, which started in the early Middle Ages and continues to date, comprises not only the printing of books in Great Britain, but also the import and sales of books.

The private ownership of printed books has been, up to now, a barely investigated question. Margaret Lane Ford has addressed the private ownership of printed books in the late 15th and early 16th century. For a contribution to The Cambridge History of the Book in Britain she has gathered evidences of provenances for the time period in question from over 4300 printed works. In the past, books in private ownership had a high practical value and were of importance for the pursuit of professions. Classical and theological texts were indispensable for the university-educated and students, while technical works were needed by merchants
